

As a global sportswear brand with offices around the world, we pride ourselves on excellent customer partnerships, quality products and strong distribution partners.

To continue to meet, if not exceed, the high standards and strategic goals we as a business set for ourselves, we have taken the decision to close our Australian office and move our operations for this country to our highly successful New Zealand office.

Our existing Sales Team in Australia will continue to manage and develop their territories, with all day to day general management and customer support now being based in New Zealand.

By amalgamating the two territories, Kukri will be in a solid position to ensure that we continue to successfully increase efficiency, elevate customer satisfaction levels, increase re order rates and in turn provide a dedicated customer support team, thereby cementing our reputation as a market leader in bespoke multisport team wear.

We look forward to continuing to work with you all.
